

Sidney has a great emotional depth. When she plays a scene, the motivation is immediately clear on one hand, while plenty of room remains for the viewer's own interpretation on the other. That's what makes her acting exciting and distinctive. There's something very close and at the same time something a little distant. And when she laughs, you just want to laugh with her. Sidney is interested in many different art forms — beyond acting, she dances, photographs, and draws.
