Viktoria Ngotsé

Given the chance, Viktoria would daydream her way through the story of how she's been in love with cinema for as long as she can remember. How as a child she escaped into colourful animated worlds and later, most of all, into the Hollywood of the 1950s to 1980s, and how it was always clear to her that one day she'd absolutely have to be part of those "other" worlds herself. How she still hopes James Cameron will call her one day for the second part of Avatar and that film noir will finally see a comeback. For a professional first impression, though — and because she also loves clear facts — she tends to go with this: after her bachelor's in media business ("something sensible"), she was finally let loose in front of the camera. In recent years she's had the chance to play everything from a malicious diamond smuggler to a seductive music blogger, and she's shot alongside international stars such as Gerard Butler and Til Schweiger. This year she's reviving the 90s with Jochen Horst in "Balko Teneriffa".
